

CAD-to-CAD

Creating a Nation-wide
Virtual Response Network

WHAT IS THE PROBLEM?

Technology has dissolved jurisdictional boundaries in almost every way except one - emergency response. When a crime or emergency occurs, like a heart attack or drowning, the initial response is often limited to the agencies within those jurisdictional boundaries, even if a neighboring agency's units are closer.

WHAT IS THE SOLUTION?

Many neighboring public safety agencies are on disparate CAD systems that lack an easy, instant way to connect and share resources during an emergency. CAD-to-CAD interoperability is the cross-jurisdictional glue that connects public safety agencies to one another when a crisis strikes.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?

240 million calls to 911 are made each year. By cutting response time by even one minute, an additional 253,032 lives can be saved annually. When PSAPs and agencies connect their CAD systems they benefit from the smarter utilization of resources, greater data accuracy, faster response times and more in order to save lives and restore order.
